Snow in Santa Fe, by Paul Lantz, 1935

Personal shrine in an Hispanic home

A photograph of a stone archway, likely a gateway to a historic town. The arch is made of light-colored, textured stone. At the top center of the arch is a decorative, star-shaped opening. Below the arch, the words "SANTA FE" are mounted on the stone wall in large, blue, three-dimensional letters. The background is a clear blue sky, and parts of red-tiled roofs are visible on either side of the arch.

SANTA FE
